SARAH L STEWARTS LATEST EXHIBITION DRAWS ON A LONG TRADITION OF ABSTRACT PAINTING of combining the formal with the affective.

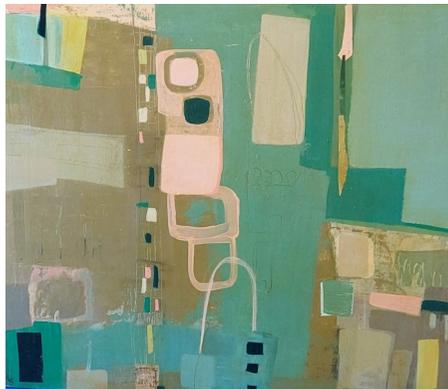

Playing with the picture plane she creates an ambiguous space where we are immersed in a landscape while simultaneously flying above it. Back on the ground we swim through water and walk between buildings, our paths scraffitoed through wet paint revealing historic trails beneath. Each softly rectilinear painting combines the formal problem solving of an abstract painter with life lived, conversations heard and spaces inhabited. This is process based painting that uncovers a personal archaeological dig and then partially obscures the layers, leaving enticing subtle surfaces and memories of paths followed.

In this second solo exhibition with Nolan Gallery Sarah L Stewart samples the colour and textures of her Bruny Island life and leads the viewer on a journey through the painter's present and history in an elegant and stylish fashion.
